FIRST MONTH-ON-MONTH DECLINE IN OUTPUT SINCE APRIL

Core sector growth falls to 4.8% in Aug

SHUBHAM RANA
New Delhi, September 21

GROWTH in the output of India's core industries fell to a three-month low of 4.8% in August. Six of the nine sectors saw slower growth last month, data released by the Department for Promotion of Industry and Internal Trade (DPIIT) on Monday showed.

The six core sectors, where output growth was slower in August compared to July, account for over 44% of the Index of Core Industries (ICI). Slower headline growth among these six sectors was driven by coal, iron ore, and fertilisers.

The growth figure for the nine core industries for July was revised lower to 5.0% from the provisional 5.4%. Core sector output grew 6.2% in August 2025. Sequentially, the overall index fell 1.3% in August, reflecting the first month-on-month decline in output since April.

The latest core industries data suggests mining, fertilisers, and energy-related sectors were in a worse position than construction-linked sectors such as cement, electricity, and steel.

"The main drag on the Core sector growth (y-o-y, %)

headline came from a continued and sharp moderation in iron ore growth, to 5.5% from 29.5%, reflecting unfriendly base effects and a further weakening of short-term trends," said Mithul Chanco, chief emerging Asia economist at Pantheon Macroeconomics.

At 5.5%, the iron ore sector growth was the slowest in 11 months. Iron ore production tends to be highly volatile as it is driven by seasonal factors and demand from the steel industry.

Coal, another mining-related segment, also saw a sharp deterioration in performance in August compared to the previous month. Coal output fell 3.8% year-on-year in August, after growing for two consecutive months. In July, coal output had risen 7.6% y-o-y.

"Slowdown in coal is mainly due to base effect and partially due to rainfall impacting mining activities," said Devendra Pant, chief economist, India Ratings and Research.

Together, the coal and iron ore sectors pulled down the headline core output growth by as much as 130 basis points in August from July, according to Rahul Agrawal, principal economist, ICRA.

The year-on-year contraction in fertiliser output worsened to a five-month low of 12.4% in August from 8.0% in July. August marked the sixth consecutive month of contraction in fertiliser output.

Supply-side issues such as energy resource availability and their high prices have adversely impacted fertiliser production, following the West Asia conflict outbreak, Pant said.

Contraction in natural gas output also deepened in August, while it was slower for crude oil compared to July.

Natural gas output contracted 4.9% y-o-y in August, compared to a 3.0% fall in July. The fall in crude oil output eased to 3.6% in August from 5.3% in July.

Growth in refined petroleum products, which have the largest weight in ICI, eased to 2.6% in August from 3.0% in the previous month.

Slower growth in six core sectors was somewhat offset by electricity production, where growth hit a 27-month high of 11.6% in August, up from 8.4% in July. Cement growth, while slightly lower than 12.7% in July, was still robust at 12.5% in August. Steel sector growth improved to 3.4% in August from a series low growth of 1.9% in July.

"The data reflects healthy underlying domestic demand, particularly for infrastructure and power consumption. The ministry in cumulative growth underscores a strengthening industrial base moving into the second half of 2026," State Bank of India's research department said in a note.

The nine core industries' output has grown sharply higher in the current financial year, compared to a year ago. Core sector output has grown 4.3% in April-August, up from 2.4% in the same period a year ago.

This is only the third print based on the new ICI series, which now covers nine sectors instead of eight in the old series. The revised ICI series, released in July, updated the base year to 2022-23 (April-March) from 2011-12 in the previous series.

The nine core industries together make up 32.88% of the Index of Industrial Production (IIP) in the new series, down from 40.27% in the previous series.

Govt eases income survey protocol to collect data

SHUBHAM RANA
New Delhi, September 21

TO ENSURE PARTICIPATION of rich households in the ongoing National Household Income Survey (NHIS), the Ministry of Statistics and Programme Implementation (MoSPI) is relaxing the timeline for respondents in gated societies to respond to the relevant questionnaire.

The ministry is also reaching out to the local Resident Welfare Associations (RWAs) in advance and conducting outreach programmes on local and social media to ensure India's first ever comprehensive NHIS is a success, MoSPI Secretary Saubhag Garg told FE.

"We have also given households one more option this time. Many of them would like to fill the questionnaire at their leisure when they have time. So we are also giving that option to some households in these gated communities on a pilot basis," Garg said.

The enumerators leave a printed questionnaire with the households, and contact them back after a few days or whatever is the timeline that has

Surat's man-made textile units hit by rising polyester prices

NANDINI OZA
Ahmedabad, September 21

SURAT'S MAN-MADE fibre industry is facing a severe pressure from a sharp rise in polyester raw material prices at a time when manufacturers are already grappling with higher input costs and weak demand, following the disruptions caused by the Hormuz crisis-related flooding.

The latest price increase has put manufacturers in a fix ahead of the festive season. They are finding it difficult to pass on the higher costs to buyers at a time when demand remains sluggish, while absorbing the increase would further squeeze already-thin margins.

According to the Southern Gujarat Chamber of Commerce and Industry (SGCCI), the increase has added about ₹20 per kg to the cost of polyester yarn — ₹7.92 at the MELT stage and another ₹12 at the POY stage. The chamber has described the increase as an abnormal rise in polyester yarn costs.

Surat's textile industry has an annual turnover of ₹1,50,000 crore, with the man-made fibre segment playing an anchor role. The sector directly employs around 1.2 million people and norms at a time when demand is picking up ahead of the festive season.

In a letter to Union Textiles Minister Giriraj Singh, the SGCCI has sought measures to SGCCI President Ashok Jarwalla has also called for a polyester price-monitoring mechanism and for benchmarking MELT, POY, FDY and DTY prices against international input costs.

"It is an artificial price rise. It is a cartel," Jarwalla alleged while speaking to FE, adding that buyers were unwilling to accept the higher prices. "We want a committee to monitor raw material prices," he said.

Suresh Patel, secretary, Southern Gujarat Textile Association, said the price rise could dampen the festive season for the industry. "The yarn prices have increased one-and-a-half times compared with what they were on March 1 this year," he said, questioning whether buyers would be willing to absorb the increase. "It is a hike proportionate to the hike in crude oil prices then we can understand. But this hike is one and a half times," he said.

With demand already weak, manufacturers are buying less than they normally would, even as units continue to operate to meet daily overheads and other fixed expenses. "Normally, we start getting festive orders from August. The demand is sluggish this time. Buyers are in a wait and watch mode," said Ashish Gujarati, textile industry leader and former president of SGCCI. He too expressed concern that Diwali may not bring the kind of demand seen in other retail sectors.

NHAI issues guidelines for high-speed highways

FE BUREAU
New Delhi, September 21

THE NATIONAL HIGHWAYS Authority of India (NHAI) has introduced a uniform design and safety framework for high-speed access-controlled national highways, setting detailed standards for lane configurations, corridorwidth, interchanges, access points and safety measures as India prepares for a major expansion of its high-speed road network.

The guidelines will apply to all upcoming four- and six-lane greenfield and brownfield high-speed access-controlled national highways, setting detailed standards for lane configurations, corridorwidth, interchanges, access points and safety measures as India prepares for a major expansion of its high-speed road network.

Until now, there were no specific standards specifically governing the planning and design of access-controlled high-speed national highways, other than expressways. As a result, variations were observed in the standards adopted for different projects under DPR preparation.

Under the new framework, lane configuration will be determined on the basis of traffic volume with corresponding standards prescribed for the width of the highway corridor and structures.

The Tata puzzle: The 1-1 inside the 4-1

TATA TRUSTS SAYS this creates two separate trusts. A resolution must first obtain a majority on the full board. It must then receive the required affirmative support among the Trust nominees. Chandrasekaran's reappointment cleared the first test by 4-1. According to the Trusts, it failed the second, because Srinivasan and Noel Tata divided evenly.

The Trusts' arithmetic is simple: a majority of two to one, on one of the two nominees voted against the resolution, the mandatory affirmative support was absent — and the overall 4-1 result, on this reading, cannot cure that failure. Tata Sons' announcement that the reappointment had been approved reflects the contrary position: the support of one Trust nominee, together with an overwhelming majority of the participating board, was sufficient.

This is not a conventional tie that can be settled by giving one potential shareholder a vote. There was no equality of votes on the Tata Sons board; the 1-1 division occurred inside the smaller category created by Article 121 — the Trust-nominated directors. That is why the debate over a casting vote may be important, but the real issue is whether Arti-

121 demands concurrence between both Trust nominees when there are only two of them. Singhvi's argument draws strength from the history of the Mistry litigation. In that case, Tata Sons itself defended the affirmative voting provisions when the Mistry side sought to have them removed or restricted as oppressive to minority shareholders. The Supreme Court accepted Tata Sons' position and reversed the National Company Law Appellate Tribunal's finding against the special provisions, recognising that the Trust nominees carried responsibilities not only to Tata Sons but also to the charitable trusts and their beneficiaries.

The Trusts now argues that Tata Sons cannot defend these rights before the Supreme Court when they are under attack and disregard them when their exercise blocks board proposal. The Articles, they say, cannot be binding only when convenient.

But the 2021 judgment does not automatically settle the present controversy. It upheld the validity of the affirmative provisions, it did not explain how a majority position should be calculated when there are two nominees and they split 1-1.

Salve's argument highlights the practical consequences of the Trusts' interpretation. If either nominee must agree, then both nominees must agree, either can block a proposal even when the other nominee and every remaining director support it. A protection intended for Tata Trusts as an institution could effectively become a veto exercised by one individual.

The Trusts' answer is that this is not paralysis but the company's constitution operating as intended. Article 121 requires a particular level of affirmative support and that support is not forthcoming in the proposal. A board majority cannot override a separate condition written into the Articles.

A court may, therefore, have to decide whether Article 121 creates a collective right exercisable only when both nominees concur, or whether the affirmative or non-vote suffices when the resolution also commands a clear majority of the full board. It may also have to examine the purpose and historical working of the provision. Singhvi has said that unanimity among the shareholders is not automatically required for resolutions that have operated for decades. Salve's position raises the counter-question: is that interpretation still compatible with the effective governance of a global special institution?

Neither "primacy" nor "professional management" answers the legal question by itself. The Trusts' controlling shareholders do not automatically give it supremacy over every decision. But concerns about boardroom efficiency cannot displace an express requirement in Tata Sons' binding Articles.

The irony is that Article 121 was meant to ensure that Tata Trusts spoke decisively in the governance of Tata Sons. The crisis has arisen because the two voices speak differently.

The Mistry judgment decided whether the Trust nominees could have affirmative rights. If the new dispute reaches the court, the judges may have to decide who breaks the tie when those nominees disagree.
